Confederation of European Pest Management Associations (CEPA) presented its Association of the Year Award 2015 to Rune Bratland (SKABRA - Norway)

At CEPA's General Assembly, which took place in Brussels, Belgium on 20 January 2015, the European trade body of the Pest Management industry presented its Association of the Year Award to Norway's SkaBra.

Bertrand Montmoreau, Chairman of CEPA, presenting the award to Rune Bratland, CEO of SKABRA, explained that CEPA's decision was "In recognition of your permanent presence at our meetings and your effort to relay our work in Europe to your small circle of professional operators at the edge of our Continent".

The Confederation of European Pest Management Associations (CEPA) is based in Brussels and represents the European urban pest management industry. It unites and federates 24 national and regional associations from 21 European Member States as well as associates from international pest management servicing companies, manufacturers and distributors.
